The Aberdeen, Scotland, Evening Express has the following account of the recent May day celebration at Money-musk, in which two children of A. E. Milne, whom he recently took to Scotland, participated: "The scholars at the village school have long kept up the ancient custom of celebrating May day, even before it was as common as it has now become. Since the beginning of the reign of King Edward, it has been usual to choose both a king and a queen, and this year the two elected were Ross Hunter Milne and his sister, Esther Mae Milne, two little Scottish Americans lately come from the United States. Their crowns were tastefully formed of daffodils and ivy, and the attendants were Dolly Skinner, Kathleen Taylor, James Williams, and Norman Donald. Headed by these, the scholars walked in procession round the village, receiving gifts of sweets, which were distributed to them on their return to school."
